A SENATOR ON SALMON

What Senator Schultz has to Say of the Salmon Industry in this Province.

Salmon-Canning Described--The Experience of Robinson and Jones.

Senator Schultz, of Winnipeg, has been contributing a series of letters to the Call of that city headed "Winnipeggers in British Columbia," in which he gives an entertaining as well as instructive description of this province and its products. On the subject of fish the Senator becomes amusing—if not ironical; for he can hardly expect his readers either here or elsewhere to believe him to be serious, when he affirms, for example, that "the salmon is no more to be compared to the Manitoba and Lake Winnipeg white fish than chalk is to cheese," in fact this comparison suits the case admirably. The salmon is dry and flavorless, whether you eat him fresh from the Fraser or after he has been embalmed in a tin can for a year. He is a greedy, predacious cannibal, who will swallow any fish, not too large to go down, whether they are of his own or any other kind; a blundering, easy-caught simpleton, who seems to lose sense, appetite and strength from the time he leaves the sea."

As Dr. Schultz admits, nevertheless, he is a great boon to the people of this province; "in large quantities, he means riches to the canners, large pay to the Siwash Indians (who catch him in one hundred fathom gill nets, with a two inch mesh), and to the Celestials, who take him from Siwash boats in the waters beneath the river end of a cannery and turn him out at its railroad switch end, neatly canned, labelled and boxed for the barbarians of the east."

We regret our inability to afford space for the narration of the personal fishing adventures of Robinson and Jones—for so the writer describes himself and his companion Dr. Walter Bown. But there is much in his description of the salmon canning industry of the Fraser River that is interesting (and statistical) reading. We append some extracts describing the four kinds of salmon caught:

Early in July the canneries are equipped with full force of Siwashes to catch, and Chinese to can the first run, known as the spring salmon. Soon the word comes that seals have been seen on the bar at the Fraser's mouth; this means that the only one of their sea enemies which can follow them to fresh water is fishing on his own account on the salmon which crowd into and up the river in mad haste to finish their appointed task, and return again a limp, useless mass of pulpy fish life to their ocean home. Nothing stays their advance, baited hooks and skilfully thrown flies do not attract them for a moment, and the Siwash fishermen has nothing to do but to drop his net across the river, drift with the current and a mile of such drift fills his boat.

Each boat has two crews, and night and day the catch goes on, and day and night the Chinese labor, so that, when in full blast, the cannery turns out the cans in cases six hours after the fish have been caught. This "spring" salmon is as large as any of the other varieties and distinguished by its pinkish (not red) flesh, and is, with the exception of the "sock eyes," (by which name the second run of salmon is called) the best of British Columbia salmon. The "sock eyes" are a smaller fish, deep red as to flesh, and richer and juicier than any other. Two or three weeks later commence the run of "cohoes," a fairly good salmon, but inferior to either of the others, and later still come the "humpbacks," whose flesh is too coarse for use, but which is canned when the other runs have been poor, and the "white flesh" salmon, a fairly good fish, but now never canned on account of repeated failures to persuade foreign fish-eaters that in the absence of a red tinge he is a salmon at all.

I have said that the Celestials take the salmon from the Siwashes, and in six hours he is canned and may be eaten, and the process is worth coming to British Columbia to see, for the only part which is done by hand is the gutting and beheading of the fish, and the testing of the completed cans. The first process is in an artificial stream of pure water, and so quickly that the knife has only gleamed twice or thrice till the headless, disembowled salmon passes under revolving knives which cut him into segments just fitting the can which receives him. The cap put on, the filled can runs slowly down an inclined plane, the edge of which is a trough of molten soder, which has made the can air tight, and it has cooled off before it falls off the end of the long incline into water heated to 180 degrees; there it remains for a short time, and when lifted out by machinery the cans bulge at both ends, and the air and excess of oil has collected at the upper end. This is quickly pricked, and the moment the bubbling ceases a drop of soder completes the process, and the cans are lowered by a crane into a vat where the temperature of 203 degrees boils them for and hour; then lifted, and if no further bulging has occurred, they are craned into a dry furnace to remain one hour and ten minutes in a temperature of 260 degrees, and they emerge with all the bony tissue dissolved, and fit for the table. Lacquered and labelled, four dozen in a case, which this year costs the manufacturers $3.50 and is sold by them in quantities at $4.60 or about nine cents per can. There are 17 canneries on the Frazer River, and they will, with the canneries on some of the smaller rivers, as the Stickeen yield over three hundred thousand cases, representing about one and a half millions of the total of four millions of B. C. exports, one million of gold, the same of coal, and one-half of lumber making up the rest.

Now one word more, and that one of warning on the subject of fish, and I have done. The deeply indented bays and inlets and the numerous banks of the western coast yield almost every fish that swims and many of them, such as the black cod, sole, &c., are scarcely to be found elsewhere. So when the future Winnipegger wishes to talk fish over here, let him take warning by the experience of Jones and myself, which was this: When we first came over here Jones was bragging about our white fish, and I thought I would take the wind out of some of their sails in describing the flavor and size of our sturgeon, the weight of which I averred to be sometimes as much as ninety pounds. Whew! says an old B. C. settler, that haint nothing. Why, a Siwash would think a sturgeon less than 600 lbs. weight not worth catching."

FROM THE CAPITAL.

Happenings at Ottawa--Statistical and other News.

From Ottawa it is learned that the accounts for the fiscal year ended June 30 last have been finally closed, and the statement shows the total receipts on account of consolidated fund to have been $35,899,846 and the expenditure $35,717,202, showing a surplus for the year of $182,604.

The statement of the public debt on Sept. 30, shows the gross debt on that date to be $293,063,870, assets, $45,722,395, leaving a net debt of $227,341,475, which is a decrease of $1,152,986 during the month.

The expenditure on capital account for the fiscal year ending June 30, was $6,836,718, made up as follows: Public works, including railways and canals, $3,975,269; Dominion lands, $162,244; subsidies to railways, $146,536; Northwest rebellion, $292,572.

The expenditure on account of capital account for the three months of the current fiscal year up to Sept. 30 has been $1,536,825, divided as follows: Public works, including railways and canals, $787,848; Dominion lands, $14,265; railway subsidies, $210,593; Northwest rebellion losses, $524,118.

The following is a statement of the receipts and expenditures on account of consolidated fund for the month of September: Revenue customs, $2,140,458; excise, $446,489; post office, $104,849; public work, including railways, $297,382; miscellaneous, $63,791; total, $3,054,969; to Aug. 31, 1887, $5,021,480; grand total, $8,077,449. Expenditure for the month of September, 1887, $1,806,286; expenditure to Aug. 31, 1887, $5,031,527; total, $6,837,813, showing a surplus of $1,239,636.

No appointments for orders-in-council, except the one prohibiting the importation of rags from Mediterranean ports, published yesterday, will appear in to-morrow's Gazette.

The Department of the Secretary of State has received a petition signed by over six thousand electors of the united counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry, praying for the repeal of the Scott Act, which is now in force in those counties.

Lieut.-Colonel Chamberlain, Queen's Printer, Mr. Sewell, the newly appointed superintendent of the new Government Printing Bureau, and Ald. J. C. Roger, of the firm of Roger, McLean & Co., Government Printers, are at present in Washington examining into the American system of government printing with a view to ascertaining what points in that system could advantageously be introduced into the new Canadian Printing Bureau about to be formed in this city.

EASTERN EXCURSIONISTS.

A Large Number Reach Victoria this Morning—A Partial List.

The steamer Princess Louise did not reach her wharf until an early hour this morning, and then left again for Vancouver. She was delayed to make connection with the Pacific Express, which was several hours late in reaching the terminus. The train was a long one, and was drawn by a couple of locomotives a considerable portion of the way through the mountains and towards the coast. Attached to the regular train was the Eastern and Winnipeg excursion party, numbering in all some 300. They occupied 5 sleepers, 4 first-class or day coaches, the dining car Claremont, and one baggage car. There were no less than 115 tickets sold in Winnipeg for sleepers to the excursionists from that city, of which the following is a partial list of the names who took advantage of the cheap trip: Mr and Mrs McDongall, Miss Frank Elliott, J C Hayes, L M Harrison, Mrs Dr McCloud, T C Livingstone, Mrs J McLeod, Mrs C D Bush and daughter, T D Cumberland, D W Buchanan, Mr and Mrs G Foulds, P D McKinnon, Mr O'Connor (Queen's hotel), Alex Haggart, John Spring, J G Hargrave, W M Stevenson, A A Jackson, C B Keenleyside, A E Ferte, Mr and Mrs Jones, Mr and Mrs Joseph Tees, Miss Webster, Miss Peters, J J Morton, J J Fanning, Ald Hutchings, W Hudson, W F King, O J Klotz, Mr Dodge, W W Southern, Mrs Dr Blanchard, Mrs Murray, Mrs D W Cummimg (Birtle), F W Winter, Rev J J Morton and wife, Mr E Everett, P Whittaker, Dr Dafresne, Mr Stephenson, Mrs Gray, W C Neelin, J J Whyte, S J Cohu, Mr Pollock, J H Smith (Moosomin), Jas Burridge, W Taylor (Brandon), Miss Laura Bullard, M Hess, Mayor and Mrs Scott, W F Wilson, Rev E R Flewelling, A F McIntosh, M Park, G Park, J Kay, E D Carey, Mr and Mrs Elwes, Miss Thornton, Miss O'Connor, G Norman, Mr Hess, M P P, James McMillan, Mrs McMillan, J C Hayes, Miss Foster, Miss Jennie Smith, Mr T M Harrison, Miss Hutton, Mr Gray.

THE UNION CLUB.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

SIR,—Evidently the correspondent to THE TIMES over the signature, "A Loyal Subject," must be a green young man, for had he taken the trouble to search the records of the Club, or consulted its oldest members, he would have discovered (perhaps to his dismay) that Senator Macdonald was one of its founders, but resigned his membership some time ago on account of his frequent absence from Victoria, but at the time his address was published in the Parliamentary Companion he was a member of the Union Club. It is to be hoped that the numerous doubters who have been shaking their heads have not injured their spinal columns, and that they will now be satisfied. A MEMBER.

TO-DAY'S DISPATCHES.

A Magic Incident at a Presidential Reception.

Canadian Government to Build the Trent Canal.

IN BAD HEALTH.

FRANKFORT, Oct. 14.—The health of Charles L., King of Wartemburg, will render it necessary for him to pass the whole winter in a southern climate.

WILSON NOT GUILTY.

PARIS, Oct. 14.—The French minister of war has placed General Boulanger under arrest for thirty days for giving reporters improper information. The cabinet council on Saturday will probably dismiss him. The judge, at the request of Mr. Wilson, examined Mmes. Rattazzi and Limousin and Baron Kreitmeyer. They declared Wilson innocent and said they made accusations against him solely in hope that the whole matter would be suppressed.

CROWN PRINCE'S HEALTH.

LONDON, Oct. 14.—The Chronicle's correspondent at Berlin, says he has learned from an unimpeachable authority that the condition of the German Crown Prince is precarious and that Dr. MacKenzie's treatment has failed. That the Prince became so week in Toblach that he could travel only by easy stages, and that he positively refuses to submit to any further operation, although original symptoms have reappeared.

A WIFE'S DEVOTION.

LONDON, Oct. 14.—The wife of Col. Hughes-Hallett has appealed to the conservative committee of Rochester to be lenient towards her husband, and not call upon him to resign his seat in the house of commons. She has, she says, condoned her husband's offense, and thinks the electors should also. She offers to personally visit all electors in her husband's behalf, and asks the committee's opinion on the subject. The committee has replied extending its sympathy to Mrs. Hallett, but does not favor her visit to electors.

RESIGNATION DOUBTED.

PARIS, Oct. 14.—The story that Gen. Boulanger has resigned his military command at Clermont-Ferrand is doubted here. His resignation at this time would be tantamount to a confession of guilt in connection with the Caffarel affair, and his criminal arrest would, of course, immediately follow. His suspension and technical arrest for a period of thirty days was the result of his outspoken accusation against the minister of war of having attacked him through General Caffarel and other decorated conspirators, and his subsequent insolence to General Fairon, when asked to explain his language, and was not for complicity in the war office scandal. His frank speech exceeded the limits of military [illegible] and [illegible] compelled to resent it.

AMERICAN NEWS.

DAVITT GONE HOME.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Michael Davitt sailed to-day on the City of Rome. During his brief stay in this country he has taken particular care to avoid all sorts of receptions and interviews, and he went down to the steamer without any escort. The full purpose of his trip has not been made public, but his chief objects were to secure the co-operation of the leaders in the order of Knights of Labor in his contest for home rule, and also to farther the interest of certain new Irish industries in which he is interested. He thinks it not unlikely that he will see the inside of a British prison soon after he gets home.

POWDERLEY'S RESIGNATION.

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 5.—At 12:30 o'clock this morning General Master Workman Powderly attached his signature to a peremptory resignation of his position. He will withhold the presentation of the document to the Assembly pending action upon the report of the committee on laws, which was submitted just before the adjournment last evening. The report recommended the dropping of two members of the general executive board and placing the appointing power of the membership of that body in the hands of the General Master Workman. This is the climax of the administration's fight upon the Barry, of Michigan, and Bailey, of Ohio, trouble, which originated when the executive board ordered the stock yards strike at Chicago to be ended. Barry and Bailey insisted then, and again yesterday, in the convention that the men would win had they been left alone, and this insubordination apparently the Master Workman never forgave.

KILLED BY THE CARS.

OMAHA, Oct. 15.—Last evening William Wickmeyer, of Corneli, Iowa, and H. W. Rice, of Desmoines, were instantly killed in South Omaha while attempting to cross a railroad track. They stepped out of the south bound train and were struck by a north bound train. They were laborers employed in packing houses.

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—The presence of a battalion of U. S. regular soldiers at the international encampment has suggested to a number of officials the idea of keeping them here until after the execution of condemned anarchists, Nov. 11th. Lieut.-Genl. Sheridan will arrive here to-day. It is stated the major and sheriff will request the lieutenant-general to order the battalion into camp somewhere near the jail until signs of trouble are over.

PLYMOUTH CHURCH PASTOR.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Mr. Lyman Abbott, editor of the Christian Union has been engaged as preacher for Plymouth church, pending the selection of a permanent pastor. He will begin his duties in November. It is understood that Dr. Abbott will not be a candidate for the permanent pastorship and that he will not undertake the pastoral duties other than as preacher.

CABLE TO FARALLONE ISLANDS.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 15.—A project is on foot here to lay a submarine cable to Farallone Islands, twenty-three miles west of this port in the Pacific Ocean. When the Chamber of Commerce assembles on Tuesday afternoon, a communication is to be sent to Chief Signal Officer, A. W. Greely, asking him to assist in the project will be presented for the approval of organization. With it will be a resolution requesting the California delegation in Congress to do their utmost to obtain an appropriation for that purpose.

NORTHERN PACIFIC MANAGEMENT.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—President Harris said to-day concerning the reports of radical changes to be made in the Northern Pacific's management: "So far as I am concerned, I was elected one of 13 directors at the recent annual meeting, and I intend to serve the full term. The directors made the President, but of course I would resign if the board wished to put another man in the place. There is no movement in this direction so far as I have been informed. The reported consolidation with the Wisconsin Central is without foundation. We are on good terms but there is no reason why the Northern Pacific should buy or lease any railroad to Chicago, when we have a terminus at the head of Lake Superior.

ATTEMPT TO WRECK THE PRESIDENT'S TRAIN.

MEMPHIS, Oct. 15.—When the Kansas City, Fort Scott and Gulf train preceding the Presidential train arrived at the trestle between Connerville and Jonesboro, Ark., yesterday, the engineer discovered the trestle to be on fire. A correspondent who happened to be on the train made a careful examination of the burned timbers, which gave unmistakable evidence of an attempt at train wrecking. The fire was started on the under side of the cross ties in such a manner that there can be no possible belief that sparks were the cause of it. Further examination showed that a torch had been applied to eight or nine of the timbers. There are many good reasons for believing that the fiends who set fire to this trestle had in mind the President's special train which was the first one over the road after the train which discovered the fire. Every train man whose opinion the correspondent asked in the matter, said freely that he had no doubt the intention was to wreck the President's train.

THE RAILWAY DISASTER.

VALPAIRAISO, Ind., Oct. 15.—Judge Field, presiding at the fall term of the Circuit Court here, has summoned the grand jury to convene on Monday and make a thorough investigation of the Kont disaster. Prosecuting attorney Chaumpacker says no pains will be spared to bring the guilty parties to justice.

POWDERLY'S DENIAL.

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 15.—A report published this morning that General Master Workman Powderly had at 12:30 p. m., written peremptory resignation created a sensation. It was not generally believed. Powderly was seen early and he denied having written out his resignation.

A TRAGIC INCIDENT.

MEMPHIS, Oct. 15.—Judge H. T. Elliott, who made the welcoming address to the President here this morning, died on the stand before the ceremonies were over. The tragic incident occurred just as the President closed his remarks in response to the Judge's welcome. Though the day was not uncomfortably warm the spot in the centre of the Court Square, where the speakers' stand had been erected, was an exposed one, and Judge Elliott, who stood for a time with his hat off as the President was speaking, sat down and was soon [illegible]. Judge Elliott was a courtly gentleman of high local repute, and his address, which was not alone for Memphis but for the whole South, was a memorable one. The President's reply was equally notable. The other aspects of the occasion had combined to make the affair extraordinary in all respects. The decorations visible everywhere were more elaborate and general than those of any place yet visited by the President, with the possible exception of Madison, and it was remarked that twice as many people were on the street as had ever been seen before in Memphis. The President's reception to the public in the hall of the Cotton Exchange was about an hour in length. The party was then escorted to their train, and at 1 p. m. left for Nashville.

CANADIAN NEWS.

THE TRENT CANAL.

OTTAWA, Oct. 15.—The conservative government here is kept in office by keeping the electors busy with public works. This system of sapping the resources of the country keeps Sir John Macdonald in power, and is not allowed to flag. The cabinet, after mature consideration, has determined to begin shortly another most important undertaking, which was broached as far back as 1833. They are going to utilize the valley of the river Trent to connect lakes Huron and Ontario by canal, which will shorten the present route from the head of the St. Lawrence to Mackinaw straits, a distance of 800 miles to 750 miles. It is estimated the cost will be ten million dollars.

The Trent is a large river discharging into the Bay of Quinte, at a point 68 miles west of Kingston, and in passing from Lake Ontario to Lake Huron by the proposed route vessels would ascend the river Trent, cross Rice Lake to Ottanabee River and Clear, Buckhorn, Chemong, Pigeon, Sturgeon, Cameron and Balsam Lakes, thence by canal to Talbot River into Lake Simcoe and by the River Severn to Lake Huron.

HON. JOHN ROBSON ABROAD.

What the Provincial Secretary has to Say on B. C. Affairs.

The Hon. John Robson whilst at the Russell Hotel, Ottawa, was interviewed by a Free Press representative relative to matters and things in general in British Columbia. In the afternoon of the day following his arrival there the honorable gentleman had an interview with Sir John Macdonald, lasting some hours. In reply to a question as to the prospects of the mining industry, Mr. Robson said that until better railway facilities were provided, no great advance in mining could be expected. The Illecillewaet mines were the ones sending out quartz in any quantity. The quartz were sent to San Francisco, and with improved machinery he had no doubt these mines would prove successful. Placer mining was carried on in about the same way and to the same extent as formerly.

Mr. Robson stated that all the country required is a railroad through the mining lands, to make it one of the greatest and richest quartz mining districts in America. At present it is impossible to open up the mines, as there is practically no way of getting the necessary machinery and supplies on the ground. But we will have the railroad put there some day and a wonderful development will follow. So far as railroad extension was concerned the province just now can do little alone. It is a vastly more expensive undertaking to build roads of any kind through the mountains of British Columbia and across the rushing torrents than it is over the level prairie of your low hilled country of the east. We in British Columbia feel that the Dominion should give us the same helping hand in developing our railroad system that she gives to the older provinces. They are more able to build railroads than we are, and for the development of the resources of the country they perhaps need them less than we do. A line into the Cariboo gold mines, another from the Canadian Pacific westward, through our fine farming lands, and one or two other short roads would give an enormous impetus to the growth and development of the province.

On being asked his views on the disallowance question, Mr. Robson said:

"Well, I think the people are convinced that it is to their interest and that of the whole country to protect the great national highway from undue competition, which the tapping of it in the very heart of the country might involve. We are satisfied to forego our wish for railway connection between New Westminster and the boundary, though it would be a benefit to us."

In answer to the query if that line would not benefit the Canadian Pacific, Mr. Robson thought it would; at least it could do them no harm, and I hope some day to see the Canadian Pacific people construct it as a feeder to their main line."

On the Behring Sea Fishery question, the Provincial Secretary said the people here were justly indignant over the treatment they have received from the American cruisers. Victoria is especially greatly interested in that industry. Twice a year the sealing fleet comes home with cargoes valued at about $250,000, or nearly half a million yearly and the business is yearly increasing.

ON THE WING.

Movements of People We Know and have Read of.

Mr. Bell, of the Halifax Chronicle, is in the city.

Col. Houghton, of Winnipeg, son-in-law to the Hon. Robert Dunsmuir and and Miss Dunsmuir, arrived from the mainland at an early hour this morning.

Mr. Richard Halpenny, of Nippewa, Man., brother to Mr. Wm. Halpenny, of this city, arrived last night. He will visit various points of the province before returning home.

Rev. Father Jouckean returned from his trip to Portland to-day. He was present last Sunday at the conferring of the pallium on Archbishop Gross by Cardinal Gibbons.

Mr. E. B. Wilson, of Peterboro', Ont., formed one of the excursion party that arrived last night from the east. He favored THE TIMES with a call.

Mr. Sam. Grigg, the popular proprietor of the Grigg House, London, Ont., one of the best known and most popular bonifaces of, Western Ontario, reached Victoria last night from the east.

Mr. Joseph Spratt has so far recovered from his severe sickness as to be able to leave for the South where he will spend the winter. He left to-day by the Mexico for San Francisco.

Mr. Charles E. King, formerly with Bell, Larkin & Patterson on the Island railway, returned from Ontario last night and purposes remaining in the city on business connected with that firm.

Mr. O'Connor, of the Queen's hotel, Winnipeg, is one of the excursionists from the prairie province's capital. Mr. O'Connor is amongst the most genial of hotel keepers and a universal favorite with tourists and the traveling community.

Messrs. Phillip and Shillington, prominent citizens of Regina, the capital of the Northwest Territories, are in the city. They speak highly of the crops in their neighborhood this year and the general outlook for the farmers of Manitoba and the Northwest. They are delighted with their trip, and intend remaining in the city until Monday.

Mr. Wm. C. Caldwell, of Lanark, Ont., a prominent lumberman, and ex-M. P. P. for South Lanark, arrived from the east last night and left for San Francisco at noon. He will return again in a few weeks when he will remain in Victoria for several days.

Mrs. Thos. E. Ladner, son and nurse left to-day for Southern California. Mr. Ladner's son, under the treatment of Dr. Renwick, is now sufficiently recovered as to be able to travel. The winter will be spent by them in the neighborhood of San Jose. Mr. Ladner is loud in his praise of Dr. Renwick's skill and the manner in which he has treated his son.

Mr. Boyd Caldwell, of Lanark, Ont., accompanied by Miss Caldwell, arrived last night and departed again for San Francisco. Mr. Caldwell is an extensive lumberman, and fought the battle of provincial rights through all the courts of Canada and the privy council on what is familiarly known as the rivers and streams bill, coming out triumphantly in the end. Besides being a lumber merchant he is an extensive woolen manufacturer and the possessor of large wealth.

MR. TURNER'S POSITION.

A writer in this morning's Colonist, who signs his effusion "Spectator," is a greater enemy of the Hon. J. H. TURNER than is THE TIMES. This fact is undoubted: the concensus of public opinion will demand an explanation. The friends of the Finance Minister feel that that gentleman owes a duty to his supporters which his high sense of honor will not suffer him to disregard. When he stepped from the seclusion of a counting room to become a leader of the people and a sworn adviser of the representative of the crown, he voluntarily abandoned immunity from criticism and in effect declared that he was ready to stand or fall, as the case might be, by the success or failure of his public acts. The honorable gentleman has not been long enough in political life to have acquired the art of dissimulation, and he would fail to prove, were he to make the attempt, that the deliberate declarations of an honest man—even when made to advance the cause of a "friend"—were at variance with his conscientious belief. The casuistry that would attempt such a task is possessed by only one of his colleagues in the government, and that individual's natural cunning may be depended on to save him from such a humiliating position. Mr. TURNER'S accession to the government was hailed with satisfaction by many outside of his immediate supporters, as it was felt that he would add considerable respectability and strength to a government which had just lost its leader and was admittedly in a weak and disorganized condition. He had long been a prominent merchant of Victoria, and had occupied positions of trust and responsibility in civic affairs. Possessing the confidence of the commercial community, his lack of political training was generously overlooked, while the prestige of his name it was believed would overshadow other glaring defects. Placed in a position where every thought should be for his country, and every act for the benefit of the state, the Hon. J. H. TURNER, an Englishman by birth and education, a tory of the old school, and a member of the British Columbia Government—secretly connived to depopulate the province in the service of which he is paid three thousand dollars a year! Instead of using his powerful influence to redress the wrongs, real or imaginary, of the civilized natives of Metlakahtla, this minister attached his signet to a petition to the people of the Republic imploring them to open a "city of refuge" for a thousand Canadians, for the good government of whom he was, with his colleagues, in a large measure responsible. Under the ægis of the "star-spangled banner," and "in the home of the free," a British "patriot" believed that the enlightened aborigines would find a haven of rest and that civil and religious liberty denied them under the Union Jack. The long years of fair and honorable treatment, dictated on grounds of morality and policy, which Britain has accorded to the red man everywhere within her broad possessions, alike with the cruel and relentless persecutions the same race has endured in the "land of freedom" so dearly loved by the Finance Minister, were forgotten in his desire to affix a stigma on our country and to disgrace us before the world.

Mr. TURNER owes it to himself, to his personal friends, to the government of which he is a member, and to the five millions of Canadians he has maligned, to explain as best he can his reasons for traducing the country of which he is a servant and disgracing the government of which he is a member. If he feels that an explanation is impossible, we would advise him as a well-wisher not to forget that a mistake confessed is already half atoned for.

There is another and equally serious phase to this matter. Mr. TURNER is a member of the firm of TURNER, BEETON & Co., of London and Victoria. Mr. BEETON is Agent-General in Great Britain for the B. C. Government, of which Mr. TURNER is a member. The signature of TURNER, BEETON & Co. is also attached to the document, and thereby Mr. BEETON is placed on record as one who advises and encourages the emigration en masse from British Columbia of a very prosperous community. Mr. BEETON in London advocates emigration to this province, although with indifferent success; Mr. BEETON in Victoria proclaims our laws and institutions to be oppressive and unjust, and succeeds in driving out more people in one year than he has been instrumental in locating here during his incumbency of the office of agent-general. The government dare not ignore the conduct of Messrs. TURNER and BEETON, who have thus so successfully proclaimed their hostility to the state. In times not so very remote, crimes less heinous have been adjudged treason against the realm of England, and the heads of the traitors have rolled in expiation from the block. But happily these are more enlightened days, and the punishment can be made to fit the crime by depriving the conspirators of the opportunities they possess to plot against the peace and prosperity of the commonwealth.

THE INIQUITOUS FRANCHISE ACT.

The Haldimand contested election case has been compromised by both parties agreeing that a new election be held. Subject to the decision of the Tory majority in the Dominion Parliament last session, the new vote will be taken on the same roll as governed the general election last February. That, as we all know, was a very defective list, and is still more so now. The voter who has moved into the constituency since 1st January, 1885, now nearly three years ago, will be disfranchised, and hundreds of farmers' sons and others who have come of age in the interval will be deprived of the right to vote. At the trial the Tory agents seemed to think that a farmer's son had no right to vote if, by hook or crook, by legal definitions that would require a master mind to comprehend, he could be deprived of his franchise. Perhaps it is regarded by the Tory leaders as a small matter that hundreds of the bone and sinew of the county should be deprived of their inalienable rights. When these young men are graciously permitted to go to the polls, by the grace of Judge UPPER we have no faith in their refusing to sustain a party that for the despicable reasons established the partisan revising barrister and all the rascalities that have followed in his train. There are many other points arising out of this election trial that can profitably be noted by electors generally, but the first duty of the friends of good government and a fair election in Haldimand is to get ready for the inevitable fight.

In this connection it may be pertinent here to ask if Mr. BAIRD, the member elect for Queen's county, New Brunswick by the grace of Returning Officer KING, contrary to the unmistakably expressed wishes of a majority of sixty of the electors of that constituency, is to be allowed to remain in the House of Commons. His position at best is an unenviable one. Yet it may be the means, perhaps of causing many of the Tory party to reflect upon what their blind obedience of Sir JOHN'S behests may lead them to. Before the BAIRD scandal came before the House, numbers of them freely declared their determination to resist any effort that might be made to obtain their endorsement of the scandalous transaction. There were some things to which they would not descend, and this was one of them, but when the time came the want of moral courage placed them in the ranks of BAIRD'S supporters, and by their assistance this man has been foisted on Parliament as the representative of a constituency that refused to elect him.

HIGHER CLASS SERVICE.

The British Government are carrying out their proposal to utilize the higher class of mail steamers for government purposes in time of war. This is done by paying a subvention to the companies in consideration of their building a certain class of vessel, to be used in the ordinary trade in times of peace and to be at the call of the government in time of war. The White Star Line has undertaken to lay down two vessels of a different type from what they would have laid down had it not been for this subvention. Instead of building ordinary merchant vessels, with their machinery and boilers exposed to an enemy's shot and shell, this company has undertaken to build two vessels of a type that met the wishes of the naval constructors, with their engines and boilers and steering apparatus below water, and propelled by twin screws, which is another great element of safety for the war vessel. The Board of Admiralty has the right of pre-emption in the case of five other vessels belonging to the same company. The vessels of the White Star Line would keep the sea for about sixty days at a ten-knot speed, while the vessels of the Peninsular and Oriental Company, at cruising speed, would keep the sea for something like fifty days. The Admiralty claim that not only is the system very much more convenient than building a number of fast cruisers to meet possible emergencies, but that it is infinitely cheaper. The cost of ten cruisers of this class, and their annual cost would amount to £285,000 per annum, while ten merchant steamers of the class indicated would cost only £50,000 a year. During the debate on which this information was given, it was stated that England would build no more heavy armored ironclads at present. She now had five more of these monsters than France, and was building two others, whereas some of the French vessels were being laid aside. It is evident from this and other indications that the question of floating armaments is entering upon a new phase.

WEST BRUCE.

The Conservatives in this constituency met yesterday (Friday) at Kincardine and decided upon not placing a candidate in the field at present in opposition to Mr. BOWAND, the Liberal standard bearer. We commend the discretion of the Conservatives of West Bruce, for it would be about as easy to elect a Liberal for Carleton as a Tory for West Bruce, which is the most completely "Grit hived" constituency in the Dominion.

The irrepressible Harry Lindley rises to deny that he died in New York last week, as reported. Harry will not die until there are no more barns to storm.

PERSONAL AND POLITICAL.

The total sum contributed by the Archdiocese of Ottawa towards the Pope's jubilee fund was $6,000.

Hon. J. A. Chapleau, replying to addresses said he had no doubt that Sir John would be able to satisfy the Manitobans.

Owing to the prevalence of Asiatic cholera in Europe, an order-in-council has been passed prohibiting the importation of rags from Mediterranean ports

A scheme is on foot for the settlement of the Highland crofter question by offering them inducements to settle in British Columbia. A government agent will likely be sent to Scotland.

An American judge has declared that the presumption is that a colored man is of American birth, and therefore a citizen. This presumption does not go in the hotels of the South or upon her railway trains.

La Presse makes it a cause of complaint against the Minister of Fisheries that he has ordered the enforcement of the law against fishing on Sunday. La Presse counsels the violation of the law.

Only four cruisers will continue in the fisheries protection service after Oct. 10, the rest being withdrawn from commission for the remainder of the season. So far little or no complaint of the manner in which the service is performed has been made by the United States authorities.

The reduction in the cost of maintaining the Mounted Police force, from $1,000 per head at their organization to $750 now, is no doubt to be largely accounted for in the reduced cost of all sorts of supplies, incidental to the growth of the country and the introduction of railway facilities. For instance, a few years ago, beef for the garrison cost 20 cts. a pound. Then it was difficult to get enough cattle for the demand. Now there are several prosperous ranches which can send daily supplies. The result is a large reduction in the cost of meat, and other items in similar proportion.

Hon. Wm. McDougall has addressed a long open letter to Hon. Mr. Mercier, at the latter's request on the question of the veto power. He shows clearly that all through the discussions in the Quebec conference and later in the Canadian parliament it was never supposed that the veto power would be exercised as it has been in relation to Manitoba legislation, and quotes Sir John's order in council of 1868 in the same effect. He concludes by denouncing the arbitrary exercise of the veto in regard to Manitoba, and calls on all the provinces to stand by the latter, lest they should leave themselves open to similar unjust treatment.

The Quebec Chronicle advises Sir John A. Macdonald to offer the Chief Justiceship of Ontario to Hon. Edward Blake. It is not at all likely that the honorable gentleman would accept but there would be no objection to honoring him by the offer were it not a moral certainty that the organs of Mr. Blake's party would make it an occasion to impute base motives to Sir John. They would say that he desired to silence an eloquent opponent, whom he feared, and much more to the same effect. Mr. Blake, however, is splendidly equipped for the Bench, which he may naturally be expected to adorn some day, but hardly in the immediate future.

SUICIDES, MURDERS AND WARS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

SIR,—The causes of so many suicides, murders and wars, are not far to seek; if we consider that the mind of man, as he enters this world, is a blank that can be filled up either with good or evil formed either for happiness or misery. To a child petted and indulged and all its foolish whims attended to and allowed to grow up unchecked and uncorrected. Then he will find himself when he comes to years of understanding quite unable to meet the stern realities of life, and the struggle ends, often in self-destruction. These words of wisdom, given us by our Maker, had no influence with the parents to whose care and training they have been committed. "He that spareth the rod hateth the child," "chasten thy son while there is hope, and let not thy soul spare for his crying," "the rod and reproof give wisdom, but a child left to himself bringeth his mother to shame." And has it not also been so in the case of the murderer, whose little ebullitions of bad temper and passion have not been checked in his youth, but the evil has grown with his growth, till at length in manhood, as Shakespeare has it, he is "jealous in honor, sudden and quick in quarrel" and in a moment of ungovernable passion, he draws the deadly revolver, and at last ends his days on the gallows. Such words of wisdom as these have been entirely disregarded by his parents: "Withhold not correction from the child, for if thou beatest him with the rod he shall not die; thou shalt beat him with the rod, and shall deliver his soul from hell."

And then hath not war its incipient growth in our early days, and its effects seen in the aggregate amongst the nations of the earth, with their bloated armaments, wherein all that science and art can conceive, has been brought to bear on the most deadly engines of destruction that ever ascended out of the bottomless pit in all ages for the destruction of humanity. And these nations too, calling themselves Christian, followers of the Prince of Peace! and yet at this moment they are standing ready to destroy one another, and spread desolation on the earth, with the countless millions of the hard-earned money of the people. Do we find the so-called leaders of the people lifting up their voices against such a terrible state of things; do we find those who are called Christian ministers and pastors, leading the people in the paths of peace? It is feared that most of them instead are building up the kingdom of Satan in the world. Do we not see company upon company marching in and out of their churches, clothed in all the pomp and paraphernalia of war, sermonized and praised for their patriotism and bravery, deluding themselves that they are doing God service. They are no doubt extending the reign of the enemy of mankind on the earth. When shall they awake out of their moral turpitude and delusion, and relive their true responsibility in the sight of heaven and in the world, and in the sight of the Heathen? Do we not long for the time when the "healing of the nations" shall be so accomplished fact; when "all things shall be made new" in that "new heaven and new earth wherein dwelleth righteousness."

Day and Night

During an acute attack of Bronchitis, a ceaseless tickling in the throat, and an exhausting, hacking cough, afflict the sufferer. Sleep is banished, and great prostration follows. This disease is also attended with Hoarseness, and sometimes Loss of Voice. It is liable to become chronic, involve the lungs, and terminate fatally. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral affords speedy relief and cure in cases of Bronchitis. It controls the disposition to cough, and induces refreshing sleep.

I have been a practising physician for twenty-four years, and, for the past twelve, have suffered from annual attacks of Bronchitis. After exhausting all the usual remedies

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is decidedly the best remedy, within my knowledge, for chronic Bronchitis, and all lung diseases. —M. A. Rust, M. D., South Paris, Me.

I was attacked, last winter, with a severe Cold, which grew worse and settled on my Lungs. By night sweats I was reduced almost to a skeleton. My Cough was incessant, and I frequently spit blood. My physician told me to give up business, or I would not live a month. After taking various remedies without relief, I was finally two bottles of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I am now in perfect health, and able to resume business, after having been pronounced incurable with Consumption.—S. P. Henderson, Saulsburgh, Penn.

For years I was in a decline. I had weak lungs, and suffered from Bronchitis and Catarrh. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral restored me to health, and I have been for a long time comparatively vigorous. In case of a sudden cold I always resort to the Pectoral, and find speedy relief.—Edward E. Curtis, Rutland, Vt.

Two years ago I suffered from a severe Bronchitis. The physician attending me became fearful that the disease would terminate in Pneumonia. After trying various medicines, without benefit, he prescribed Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which relieved me at once. I continued to take this medicine, and was cured. —Ernest Colton, Logansport, Ind.

Pleasantly located at Chilliwhack Landing.

CONSISTING of nineteen rooms, painted and papered, with or without furniture. A pretty Flower Garden, good Vegetable Garden, Barn, Driving House and Stable, with all the facilities for doing a flourishing business.

Mrs. Harrison's reason for advertising is that she desires to retire from public life. Her successor cannot wish for more than the enviable popularity that has characterised her Temperance House Hotel, which bears not only a well-known and highly creditable reputation throughout this province but also in Ontario.

Chilliwhack Valley is one of the most promising agricultural settlements in British Columbia, and we unhesitatingly predict for it in the near future increased wealth and growing prosperity. For further particulars, address

On, ax in hand, he staggered, that dreadful looking, splendid savage, and the ladies for got to turn faint at the scene of blood, and cheered him, as well they might, but he never stayed or heeded. With outstretched arms and tottering gait he pursued his way, followed by us all along the broad shell strewn walk that ran through the court yard, past the spot where the blocks of marble lay, through the round arched doorway and the thick curtains that hung within it, down the short passage and into the great hall which was now filling with hastily armed men, who poured through the side entrance. Straight up the hall he went, leaving behind him a track of blood on the marble pavement, till at last he reached the sacred stone, which stood in the center of it, and here his strength seemed to fail him, for he stopped and leaned upon his ax. Then suddenly he lifted up his voice and cried aloud:

"I die, I die, but it was a kingly fray Where are they who came up the great stair! I see them not. Art thou there, Macumazahn, or art thou gone before to wait for me in the dark whither I go? The blood blinds me—the place turns round—I hear the voice of waters."

Next, as though a new thought had struck him, he lifted the red ax and kissed the blade

"Farewell, Inkosi-kaas!" he cried. "Nay, nay, we will go together, we cannot part, thou and I. We have lived too long one with another, thou and I. One more stroke, only one! A good stroke! a straight stroke! a strong stroke!" and, drawing himself to his full height, with a wild heart shaking shout, he with both hands began to whirl the ax around his head till it looked like a circle of flaming steel. Then suddenly with awful force he brought it down straight on to the crown of the mass of sacred stone. A shower of sparks flew up, and such was the almost superhuman strength of the blow that the massive marble split with a rending sound into a score of pieces, while of Inkosi-kaas there remained but some fragments of steel and a fibrous rope of shattered horn that had been the handle. Down with a crash on to the pavement fell the fragments of the holy stone, and down with a crash on to them, still grasping the knob of Inkosi-kaas, fell the brave old Zulu—dead. And thus the hero died.

A gasp of wonder and astonishment rose from all those who witnessed the extraordinary sight, and then somebody cried, "The prophecy! the prophecy! He has shattered the sacred stone!" and at once a murmuring arose.

"One more stroke, only one!"

"Ay," said Nylepilia, with that quick wit which distinguished her—"ay, my people, he has shattered the stone, and behold the prophecy is fulfilled, for a stranger king rules in Za-Vendis. Incubu, my lord, hath beat Scrais back, and I fear her no more, and to him who hath saved the crown it shall surely be. And this man," she said, turning to me and laying her hand upon my shoulder, "wot ye that, though wounded in the fight of yesterday, he rode, with that old warrior who lies there, one hundred miles 'twixt sun set and rise to save me from the plots of cruel men. Ay, and he has saved me, by a very little, and therefore because of the deeds that they have done—deeds of glory such as our history cannot show the like—therefore I say that the name of Macumazahn and the name of dead Umslopogaas, ay, and the name of Hara, my servant, who aided him to hold the stair, shall be blazoned in letters of gold above my throne, and shall be glorious forever while the land endures. I, the queen, have said it."

This spirited speech was met with loud cheering, and I said that after all we had only done our duty, as it is the fashion of both Englishmen and Zulus to do, and there was nothing to make an outcry about; at which they cheered still more, and then I was supported across the outer court yard to my old quarters, in order that I might be put to bed. As I went my eyes lit upon the brave horse Daylight that lay there, his white head outstretched on the pavement, exactly as he had fallen on entering the yard; and I bade those who supported me take me near him that I might look on the good beast once more before he was dragged away. And as I looked, to my astonishment, he opened his eyes, and, lifting his head a little, whinnied faintly. I could have shouted for joy to find that he was not dead, only unfortunately I had not a shout left in me; but as it was grooms were sent for and he was lifted up and wine poured down his throat, and in a fortnight he was as well and strong as ever, and is the pride and joy of all the people of Milosis, who, whenever they see him, point him out to the little children as the "horse which saved the White Queen's life."

Then I went on and got off to bed, and was washed and had my mail shirt removed. They hurt me a good deal in getting it off, and no wonder, for on my left breast and side was a black bruise the size of a saucer.

The next thing that I remember was the tramp of horsemen outside the palace wall some ten hours later. I raised myself and asked what was the news, and they told me that a large body of cavalry sent by Curtis to assist the queen, had arrived from the scene of the battle, which they had left two hours after sundown. When they left the wreck of Sorais' army was in full retreat upon M'Arstuna, followed by all our effective cavalry. Sir Henry was encamping the remains of his worn out forces on the site such is the fortune of war) that Sorais had occupied the night before, and proposed marching on to M'Arstuna on the morrow. Having heard this, I felt that I could die with a light heart, and then everything became a blank.

When next I awoke the first thing I saw was the round disk of a sympathetic eye glass, behind which was Good.

"How are you getting on, old chap?" said a voice from the neighborhood of the eye glass.

"What are you doing here?" I asked, faintly. "You ought to be at M'Arstuna, have you run away, or what?"

"M'Arstuna!" he replied, cheerfully. "Ah, M'Arstuna fell last week—you've been unconscious for a fortnight, you see—with all the honors of war, you know, trumpets blowing, flags flying, just as though they had the best of it, but for all that weren't they glad to go! Israel made for his tents, I can tell you—never saw such a sight in my life."

"And Sorais?" I asked.

"Sorais—oh, Sorais is a prisoner, they gave her to the soldiers, as usual, which is a pity, as she is a handsome woman, but I'm afraid the queen will not allow it. You see she is being brought up here and I don't know what will happen to her, poor soul," and he sighed.

"Where is Curtis?" I asked.

"He is with Nylepilia. She rode out to meet us today and there was a grand to do, I can tell you. He is coming to see you to-morrow, the doctors (for there is a medical faculty in Za-Vendis as elsewhere) thought that he had better not come today."

I said nothing, but somehow I thought to myself that notwithstanding the doctors he might have given me a look, but then, when a man is newly married, and has just gained a great victory, he is apt to listen to the advice of doctors, and quite right too.

Just then I heard a familiar voice informing me that "Monsieur must now couch himself," and looking up perceived Alphonse's enormous black mustaches curling away in the distance.

"So you are here?" I said.

"Mais oui, monsieur, the war is now finished, my military instincts are satisfied, and I return to nurse monsieur."

I laughed, or rather tried to, but whatever may have been Alphonse's failings as a warrior (and I fear that he did not come up to the level of his heroic grandfather in this particular, showing thereby how true is the saying that it is a bad thing to be overshadowed by some great ancestral name), a better or a kinder nurse never lived. Poor Alphonse! I hope he will always think of me as kindly as I think of him.

On the morrow I saw Curtis and Nylepilia with him, and he told me the whole history of what had happened since Umslopogaas and I galloped wildly away from the battle to save the life of the queen. It seemed to me that he had managed the thing exceedingly well, and showed great ability as a general. Of course, however, our loss had been dreadfully heavy—indeed, I am afraid to say how many perished in the desperate battle I have described, but I know that the slaughter has appreciably affected the male population of the country. He was very pleased to see me, done follow that he is, and thanked me with tears in his eyes for the little I had been able to do. I saw him, however, start violently when his eyes fell upon my face.

As for Nylepilia, she was positively radiant now that "her dear lord" had come back with no other injury than an ugly scar on his forehead.

"And what art thou going to do with Sorais?" I asked her.

"Sorais," she said, with a little stamp of the foot, "ah, but Sorais!"

Sir Henry hastened to turn the subject.

"You will soon be about and all right again now, old fellow," he said.

I shook my head and laughed.

"Don't deceive yourselves," I said. "I may be about for a little, but I shall never be all right again. I am a dying man, Curtis. I may die slow, but die I must. Do you know, I have been spitting blood all the morning? I tell you there is something working away into my lung; I can feel it. There, don't look distressed; I have had my day, and am ready to go. Give me the mirror, will you? I want to look at myself."

He made some excuse, but I saw through it and insisted, and at last he handed me one of the disks of polished silver, set in a wooden frame like a hand screen, which serve as looking glasses in Zu-Vendis. I looked and put it down.

"Ah," I said quietly, "I thought so; and you talk of my getting all right!" I did not like to let them see how shocked I really was at my own appearance. My grizzled stubby hair was turned snow white, and my yellow face was shrunk like an aged woman's and had two deep purple rings painted beneath the eyes.

Here Nylepilia began to cry, and Sir Henry again turned the subject, telling me that the artists had taken a cast of the dead body of old Umslopogaas, and that a great statue in black marble was to be erected of him in the act of splitting the sacred stone, which was to be matched by another statue in white marble of myself and the horse Daylight as he appeared when, at the termination of that wild ride, he sank beneath me in the court yard of the palace. I have since seen these statues, which, at the time of writing this, six months after the battle, are nearly finished; and very beautiful they are, especially that of Umslopogaas, which is exactly like him. As for that of myself, it is good, but they have idealized my ugly face a little, which is perhaps as well, seeing that thousands of people will probably look at it in the centuries to come, and it is not pleasant to look at ugly things.

Then they told me that Umslopogaas' last wish had been carried out, and that instead of being cremated, as I shall be, after the usual custom here, he had been tied up Zulu fashion, with his knees beneath his chin, and, having been wrapped in a thin sheet of beaten gold, entombed in a hole hollowed out of the masonry of the micricular space at the top of the stair he defended so splendidly, which faces, as far as we can judge, almost exactly toward Zululand. There he sits and will sit forever, for they embalmed him with spices and put him in an air tight stone coffer, keeping his grim watch beneath the spot he held alone against a multitude; and the people say that at night his ghost rises and stands shaking the phantom of Inkosi-kaas at phantom foes. Certainly they fear during the dark hours to pass the place where the hero is buried.

A BY-LAW

To Define the Width of Streets.

[Passed 12th October, 1887.]

WHEREAS, it is expedient to define the width of streets to be hereafter taken over and maintained by the City of Victoria, therefore

BE IT ENACTED by the Council of the Corporation of the City of Victoria:

1. This By-Law may be cited for all purposes as "The Street Width By-Law, 1887."

2. From and after the passage of this By-Law no street that shall be of less width than sixty feet from the line fence on either side thereof shall be accepted or maintained by the said city.

3. It shall not be lawful to devote any part of the city revenue in surveying, grading or gravelling or in laying sidewalks along the line of any street not already accepted or taken over by a vote of this Council that shall be of less width than sixty feet from the line fence on either side thereof.

4. This By-Law shall not apply to any street accepted or taken over by the city at the date of the passing of this By-Law. oct13

Quick Trip.

A telegram from Port Townsend to THE TIMES states that the new steamer Premier arrived there at 12:10 a. m. Her running time from Victoria was two hours and thirty minutes. As the distance is 88 knots, this is one of the fastest passages on record. The Olympian is said to have made the distance in a few minutes less time.

Manitoba's Railway.

Latest advices from Winnipeg concerning the railway difficulty are to the effect that Mr. Ryan having abandoned the contract the government had received offers from Messrs. Foley Bros. to complete the work. Premier Norquay has stated that the road would be in operation in a few weeks.

Stealing a Bride.

Major S. B. Steele, the gallant commander of the Kootenay contingent of mounted police; has met the enemy and been vanquished. He surrendered without a struggle and was led to the sacrifice without even striking a blow. The young lady is one of Baltimore's fairest daughters, and the event transpired at Donald a few days ago. The gallant officer has our congratulations.

Men's and Boys' Hats, Caps, Ties, Gloves, Shirts, Socks, Underwear; also the goods damaged by the smoke. All goods will be marked in plain figures and sold for cash only.

Tony Cigars.

A Chinaman Captured.

A Chinaman named Chin Kwan, who owed a brother celestial one hundred dollars, attempted to leave the city today by the San Francisco steamer, but was met at the outer wharf by the sheriff, who presented him with a billet doux in the shape of a capias. Kwan politely declined the document, but the insidious and engaging attentions of the officer were irresistible, and the innocent victim of a heartless creditor now languishes in a cell in the provincial goal. Mr. Thornton Fell is acting for the party of the first part.

Roller Skating Rink Open Every Day.

From Vancouver.

To Arrive To-night

The Winnipeg excursionists who remained over at Vancouver last night will arrive in Victoria to-night by the Princess Louise. They number about 200.

Cupid Again Conquers.

Mr. Allan R. Cameron and Miss Minnie MacPherson were married last evening in St. John's Church. The Rev. Jenes tied the naptial knot which made the two young hearts beat as one. The happy couple left on the Mexico to-day to spend the honeymoon in California. Miss MacPherson is a niece of Mr. John A. (Cariboo) Cameron. We join with the many friends of the young couple in wishing them a prosperous journey through life.

What Am I To Do.

The symptoms of Biliousness are unhappily too well known. They differ in different individuals to some extent. A Bilious man is seldom a breakfast eater. Too frequently, alas, he has an excellent appetite for liquids but none for solids of a morning. His tongue will hardly bear inspection at any time; if it is not white and furred, it is rough, at all events.

The digestive system is wholly out of order and Diarrhœa or Constipation may be a symptom or the two may alternate. There are often Hemorrhoids or even loss of blood. There may be giddiness and often headache and acidity or flatulence and tenderness in the pit of the stomach. To correct all this if not effect a cure try DR. J. C. AYER'S Cathartic Pills. It costs but a trifle and thousands attest its efficacy.

"C" Battery Regulations.

The departmental regulations bearing on the formation of the new "C" Battery have been issued. In addition to the information which has already been published, it appears that the men will not be allowed to purchase their discharge until after they have served eighteen months in "C" Battery. Each man will be provided with a new rifle and set of accoutrements to take with him to B. C. The battery will travel in emigrant sleepers, the department furnishing them with two blankets each for use on the way. Fifteen camp kettles will also be taken for use in case of emergency. No horses will, however, be allowed. Free transportation from the headquarters at which the men are now serving will be furnished for their wives and children, but not for servants of officers and gunners if they proceed with the battery. It was expected in Ottawa a week ago that marching orders will be issued in a few days.

To-day's Excursion.

Shortly after 9 o'clock the elegant steamer of the C. P. N. Co., the Premier, left the company's wharf carrying with her a precious party of excursionists from this city for Port Townsend and return. The excursion was gotten up under the auspices of the St. Andrew's and Caledonia societies. The number on board was close upon 300—the actual ticket sale being 293. Amongst the number was observed Capt. John Irving, commodore of the C. P. N. Co.'s fleet, R. P. Rithet, John Boyd, Thos. Russell, Thos. J. Barnes, A. J. Smith, and many other prominent citizens. The major portion of the happy party were ladies. There were also whole families on board. All went determined to enjoy themselves thoroughly, and in that they were not disappointed. The military band accompanied the excursionists and discoursed Scotch airs from the hurricane deck of the Premier as she sped out of the harbor amidst the waving of handkerchiefs from those on board and on shore. Messrs. D. R. Munro, W. Lormer, R. Mitchell, A. J. Smith and other members of the above societies were active in their attention to the excursionists. The Premier will reach the wharf on her return about 6 o'clock this evening.

Concert this Evening.

With the Winnipeg excursionists who arrived this morning, are a number of leading vocalists from the Prairie City, who, before leaving, organized themselves into a concert company to sing at the principal towns along the line on the return journey. The opening concert will be given this evening in the rooms of the Y. M. C. A., Broad street; admission free. The members of the company are Mr. Jos. Tees, tenor; Mrs. W. S. Jones, soprano; Miss N. Webster, contralto; Mr. A. E. Ferte, basso, and Miss Peters, pianist. Mr. Tees, the tenor and conductor of the company, is the leader of Grace Church choir, Winnipeg; Mr. Ferte has a magnificent full toned bass voice, rich and well trained, a voice which has but few equals in Canada. The soprano, Mrs. Jones, was for some years leading soprano in one of Toronto's largest churches, while Miss Webster as a contralto has no equal in Winnipeg; Miss Peters the pianist holds diplomas from the conservatory of Dresden. It was not the intention of the company to sing here at all but at the earnest solicitation of the Y. M. C. A., they have consented to give a concert this evening. Although the notice given is necessarily short a large audience may be anticipated.

Alvin Joslin—A Hero.

Mr. Geo. Arthur, assistant agent of the Alvin Joslin company, paid this office a pleasant call this morning, and said: "Mr. Davis, known as the 'Diamond King,' will be with you on Monday and Tuesday. We have our world renowned band still with us, which is, this season, better than ever, being under the leadership of Mr. S. Snow, formerly leader of the great German band that came to America on a visit at the time of the Centennial Exhibition. Concerning the play I have nothing to say. Mr. D.'s reputation as the impersonator of 'Alvin Joslin' needs no elaborate comment at your hands, for it is presumed that every man, woman and child, from 'Maine to Arkansaw,' have seen and enjoyed it. It is a deserving compliment to Mr. Davis that he is well liked by the public in general, personal acquaintances, and the press. He is genial, companionable, and liberal, and those who have known him longest are his warmest friends. Many touching incidents of the liberality of Mr. Davis extended to people in the theatrical profession, I could mention, where he has relieved the wants of his suffering brethren, when that institution called the "Actor's Fund" has failed to respond to the just demand of charity. There are many unfortunate actors, and other people in general, that bless the name of Chas. L. Davis, for his modest, substantial and willing aid. Yes, sir, our band will this season give you some extra fine music, but if it storms the band will not parade in their uniforms, but will appear in their fatigue suits consisting of high cut walking shoes, plain suspenders and a check necktie. Look out for them, they arrive at 2:30 p. m., Monday, from Portland."

THE INDIAN DEPARTMENT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

Victoria, Oct. 14th.

SIR—I observe in your issue of last evening a leading article headed "The Indian Department," in which you make certain reflections upon Sir John Macdonald's administration of the Indian Department, and concluded by stating that the probable reason for Sir John's retirement from the position of Superintendent General of Indian Affairs, and the appointment of Hon. Thos. White to the same, is owing to "the muddled condition of the Department and the necessity for a man of greater activity at its "head." I have no doubt it will be gratifying to you to learn from me, as the chief executive officer of the Indian Department, that when the change above referred to took place, I was able to report to the Honorable Mr. White, the successor in office of Sir John Macdonald, that there were no arrears of work in the department. And as proof of that statement I was able to start for this province within one week after Mr. White's appointment. It is due to my late chief, Sir John Macdonald, that I should make this statement as well as the further one that while he occupied the very responsible position of Superintendent-General of Indian Affairs he devoted much time and gave great attention to Indian matters; and it is therefore superfluous for me to add, respecting one whose ability is so generally acknowledged, that he displayed wonderful tact and ability in dealing with the complicated questions connected with Indian administration.

I remain, Sir,
Your obed't servant,
L. VANKOUGHNET.
Deputy Supt.-Gen. of Indian Affairs.

Mr. Vankoughnet, in the above letter, gives his minister and himself a character concerning the manner in which they had managed the Indian affairs. We have every reason for believing that Mr. Van Koughnet is a good officer, well up in the work connected with his department and in every way an efficient chief executive officer. Whilst saying this much, however, and notwithstanding the praise Mr. Vankoughnat sounds in his chief's behalf, the statement is still uncontradicted that a change in the head of the Department of Indian affairs was necessary in consequence of the repeated complaints which were emanating from those having business transactions therewith. It is a notorious fact that Sir John is a most inveterate procrastinator; putting off until to-morrow that which should be done to-day, and for which he is styled "Old To-morrow." We are not prepared to dispute Mr. Vankoughnet's assertion that there were no arrears in the work of the office when the Hon. Thos. White assumed control of its affairs. That does not prove the inaccuracy of the allegations as to its affairs being in a muddled condition. The Northwest troubles of 1885 and the continued murmurings heard in that country testify that some one bungled and that at a fearfully expensive rate to the country. The "wonder that tact and ability" in dealing with the Indian problem which Mr. Vankoughnet claims for Sir John's administration ability would, we most respectfully suggest to his "executive officer," sound better, and be more in keeping with the dignity of the office, did it emanate from some other personage than Mr. Vankoughnet, whose conduct in this instance in rushing into print in his own defence instead of through the proper channel, the departmental reports and the house of commons, is to say the least not altogether becoming or according to the custom and practice which has hitherto prevailed in Canada.

ANOTHER FIRE.

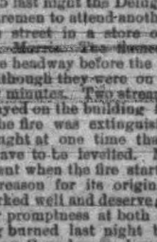
A Boot and Shoe Store on Johnson Street Burned.

At 9:15 last night the Deluge bell called the firemen to attend another blaze on Johnson street in a store occupied by Mrs. H. Morris. The flames had considerable headway before the firemen arrived, although they were on the ground in a few minutes. Two streams of water were played on the building for an hour before the fire was extinguished, and it was thought at one time that the store would have to be levelled. Mrs. Morris was absent when the fire started and can give no reason for its origin. The firemen worked well and deserve great praise for their promptness at both fires. The building burned last night belonged to Mr. Henry Saunders and was the only wooden building which stood after the fire which took place some three years ago in that locality. The building is uninsured. The stock and furniture is insured in the Phœnix Fire Insurance Company for $2200. The stock of shoes was removed, but was considerably damaged by water. The police were on hand and rendered valuable service. Mr. M. Salmon's store, adjoining the burned building, was uninjured. After the fire was extinguished the firemen discovered one room in the house which was not injured by either the fire or water. A lamp was burning brightly and the remnants of a meal was found on the table.

The Biggest Yet.

In these days of district and provincial agricultural shows we hear much about monsters in living stock, monster potatoes, monster carrots and mangolds, but the following so completely knocks the monsters out that British Columbia hereafter must sing low. It is said that whilst Adam Forepaugh, the great American showman, was at Atchison, Kansas, bought of J. K. McGregor, of Wichita, for $10,000 cash, the mammoth ox, "John Sherman," weighing 4,250 pounds, the the largest in the world, and beyond doubt the greatest curiosity living, in the way of an animal—being as much larger in comparison with ordinary cattle as Jumbo was over other elephants. He is a beautiful roan, six feet four inches high, eleven feet four inches around the girth, three feet four inches between hip points, and eighteen feet from tip to tip.

ROYAL



BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and cannot be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short weight alum or phosphate powders. Sold only in cans. ROYAL BAKING POWDER Co., 106 Wall Street, New York.

POLICE COURT.

Annie, an Indian woman, drunk, withdrawn.

The defendant claimed that he is a member of the fire department, and that his whole time was occupied attending to fire duties.

The case was remanded until Monday morning to hear the evidence of Chief Engineer Phillips.
